BIRDS OF MAGEE MARSH WILDLIFE AREA AND VICINITY

Welcome to the marshes of western Lake Erie, one of the most productive areas of biodiversity in the state of Ohio. The Magee Marsh Wildlife Area covers about 2,200 acres, but together with the protected marshes that surround it, about 11,400 acres of coastal wetlands are owned and managed by the Ohio Division of Wildlife and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Additionally, the Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Division of Parks and Recreation, owns the 1,850-acre Maumee Bay State Park located at the western end of the region covered by this checklist. The map on the back of the checklist depicts the area covered by this list.

Magee Marsh is known throughout Ohio and far beyond as an excellent birding spot. In 2000, Wild Bird Magazine ranked Magee in the top 10 of North American birding locales, and with good reason. This checklist includes 348 species; 82% of all bird species ever spotted in Ohio. Also, the proximity of Lake Erie causes migrating birds to gather in this area, sometimes in mind-boggling numbers. One of the best spots in North America to observe spectacular numbers of migrant songbirds is the Magee Marsh "Bird Trail," the mile-long boardwalk that bisects a 34-acre patch of swamp forest at the end of the causeway road.

Spring is the premier birding season here; of the 348 species so far recorded in the area, 310 have been found from March through May. Birding is interesting at any season, though, and the marsh region is vital for breeding birds. One hundred and forty-one species have been documented nesting in this area; that's over 75% of all species that nest in the entire state each year! Finally, birders love to find rarities, and Magee Marsh and vicinity have a fantastic track record in that regard. Seventeen species with five or fewer Ohio records have been found, and three species with only one record to date were discovered here.

Magee Marsh Wildlife Area was purchased and is maintained with sportsmen and women's hunting license fees and permit dollars. Purchasing habitat supports all wildlife.

The ODNR Division of Wildlife is the state agency responsible for managing Ohio's fish and wildlife resources. The primary source of funding for the Division comes from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses, federal excise taxes on hunting, fishing, and shooting equipment, and donations from the public. We care about all wildlife and maintaining stable, healthy wildlife populations. Our challenge is to balance the needs of wildlife, habitat, and people.
